SHE FINDS

We're already nearly a month into 2022, and while much of that has been spent inside due to an unfortunately timed surge of Covid, this also provides the perfect opportunity to nail down your look for the new year and try out the biggest trends before wearing them out in public. Last year saw the rise of faux freckles, nose contouring, and Euphoria-esque glittering eye looks, begging the question: what does 2022 have in store for beauty trends? To get the professional take, we spoke with Kristen Fortier, Makeup Artist & Product Innovation Lead for Crunchi Cosmetics so you can start practicing your application techniques and choose the trends that best compliment your features as the year begins.
