PFAS Legislation and Packaging - ePac Update

Dear ePac Customer,

Great news to share with you today!

ePac Flexible Packaging continually monitors regulatory developments to ensure that all components used in our products are safe. We have been aware of recent legislation regarding a class of fluorine-containing chemicals known as 'PFAS' used in many applications, including certain consumer products and packaging.

ePac packaging has been compliant with all the states' legislations related to PFAS. We are pleased to report that we have also completed the supply chain qualification work removing any intentionally added PFAS. ePac is compliant in advance of all the states' upcoming deadlines related to plastic packaging.

By way of this letter, ePac is confirming the packaging you will be ordering meets the PFAS regulations.

If you have any questions about this update, please contact your salesperson.
Thank you for your support of ePac's Flexible Packaging.

Sincerely,

David B Long
